FAVOR CUT IN HUNTING FEE

Lower Charge for Non-Residents Favored by Marion County Association.

Two hundred members of the Marion County Fish and Game Protective association attended the organization's monthly meeting last night at the Elks hall. Roy Mel president, introduced the bus' guest speaker after which refreshments were served. A committee composed of Ralph Cooley, Fred Hall and V. F. Bauman was in charge of preparing and serving the refreshments.

The organization passed a resolution in regard to changing in basic non-resident hunting fees. A copy of the resolution which suggests that non-resident hunting fees be increased a fee of $3 was forwarded to the state conservation department today. At present, 10 of the state hunters are required to pay a fee of $15.50 as compared to the $12.50 fees for 1000 tons of the state's social members. Pointed out there is a tendency for non-residents to purchase the resident license to avoid the heavy fee while members would probably not do the same if the change was made.

The Whetstone river dam project proposed by the organization was discussed briefly. It was reported that plans for the WPA project are now awaiting final approval in Washington. The five dams will be placed in the Whetstone river from near the Delaware county line north to about three miles south of Gahanna. It was originally planned to construct nine dams, but four were eliminated when it became impossible to obtain land easements along a portion of the river, members said.

Paul Thomas, state representative for Marion county addressed the meeting. He gave his approval of a resolution advocating a universal fishing license which the association had previously adopted. The next meeting will be held Nov. 1 at the Elks hall when motion pictures of conservation work will be shown.

Monoxide

Too many persons suffer and die from gas poisoning. This is only because they ignore the many warnings given them. The greatest danger from gas poisoning is that produced by carbon monoxide gas which escapes from the exhaust of automobiles and is found in cities illuminating gas.

When carbon monoxide gas is inhaled it combines with the blood producing serious and even fatal changes within the body. The poison gas is rapid in its deadly action. The victim is overcome before he has a chance to escape. Immediate and intelligent care is required to resuscitate him and unless energetic measures are taken the victim never awakens.

Always open the garage doors and windows before starting the engine of your car. If you want to tinker with the motor do so outside the home of the new president, Mrs. John Mortland.

A surprise program was planned by Mrs. Clarence Myers and Mrs. L. Middleton when the Tourists club held its first meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Hocker Tuesday night.

Mrs. C. C. Nease and Mr. Curtis Atles were appointed as delegates to the central conference in Ashland Oct. 2nd and 3rd when the Women's Missionary society of First Lutheran church met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. D. W. Kitch.

One of the outstanding meetings at Peace Lutheran Parish house Tuesday night was a large group meeting of all members of the church. This was the climax to small group meetings which have been held during the year for the benefit of the church.

The Stars Say— For Thursday, Oct. 8

A fairly lively day is presaged from the lunar transits but small matters may engage the attention. An element of connivance, secrecy and subtlety seems to dominate modes of action. Shun petty quarrels.

Those whose birthdays it is are on the eve of a fairly lively and progressive year with the most gainful activities in connection with trusts, combines and secret organizations or through intricate connivance and secret agreements.

A child born on this day may be clever, shrewd, inclined to stratagem and intrigue. It may encounter difficulties through its irritability, inconsiderate speech and subtle ways.

Arrangements are being made for a penny social to be held at Meeker school Oct. 18.

The Ladies Aid is giving a chick en supper at the Community house Oct. 24.

John J. Huebner, manager of the Obio theater, was elected president. John A. Atwell, vice president; G. L. Criswell, secretary; and F. L. Alexander, C. E. Johnson, A. W. Keene, T. J. McFarland, C. Z. Zachman and H. J. Conroy, directors.

The new officers will take charge of the club's affairs Jan. 1.

Discusses Hazards

The subject of Mr. Criswell's fire prevention talk was "Common Fire Hazards." Using special equipment for demonstrations, he spoke of the causes of dwelling house fires named by Mr. Criswell are only maps and traps placed in cellarways and other out-of-the-way spots, celluloid comb and dolls, floor dust and combustible, explosive and inflammable cleaning fluids, and gasoline.

Floor dust and corn starch, he said, act in a manner similar to the coal dust which is the cause of many mining catastrophes. He also gave a series of dangerous explosive properties, and gave similar ex-planifications of the dangerous properties of cleaning fluid, gasoline and celluloid articles. He said that nearly all combs and similar toilet articles imported from foreign countries are made of plastic material, while those made in America are usually of rubber or some other material not inflammable.

Todd Reduced

Mr. Criswell was introduced by Fire Chief T. J. McFarland, who gave a brief talk in which he told of progress made in fire prevention. Five years ago, he said, the nation's fire loss was $600,000,000, while last year it had been cut to $240,000,000. The campaign for further reduction continues, he said, with the hope last success will be achieved in "getting at the bottom of the catastrophes which is the cause of nearly all fires."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calm—Add To Your Diet Bed in the Morning Radio to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowel daily. If this bile is not forced in the bowels, Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel tired.

Leasites are only make-shifts. A man born without doesn't eat at the cause. It takes three good old German-style liver tonics to do the job. One is a mixture of lime juice and make yourself "up-and-up". Hermetia, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow again. Stabberlin refuse nothing else. The name?

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Head, the author of approximately 300 head Mrs. Head, the author of Columbus, review the fascinating story of Scarlet O'Hara in Margaret Mitchell's best seller, "Gone with the Wind" last night in the Central Christian church. The occasion marked the opening of the 1936-37 season for the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs and also launched the first of a series of book reviews to be given by Mrs. Head for the fourth consecutive year under the auspices of the federation.

Mrs. Head's book reviews have come to literary features which are looked forward to with a great deal of interest from year to year and the fact that she chose the widely-discussed new novel for her first review made last night's program an outstanding event on the year's calendar. The main auditorium of the church was filled to capacity, chairs were placed in the aisles and on the church rostrum and also in the adjoining Sunday school rooms.

Speaking for two hours Mrs. Head did a full measure of justice to the novel interpreting the characters with the clarity and understanding to be realized only from a thorough study of the story and its background and let her audience wishing she had had time to tell more about Gerald O'Hara, his thoroughbred wife, Melanie, his sister, Ashley Wilkes, who would not have loved him had she understood that he would no longer have him.

The reader may forget much of the book but none will ever forget Scarlet's trip from Atlanta to Tara down the long road that was to lead her only to a ruined world.

Mr. Head pointed out and cited her attempt to rebuild the home as another of the fascinating phases of the novel.

Mrs. Head mentioned Russia in her period of reconstruction in comparison with the reconstruction of the south in the late 60's and 70's and said the author had lost none of the horror of the picture in her story.

That the novel is perhaps too long there is needless repetition and there are places where there could be condensation were the only criticisms of the novel offered.

Audience Fills Church for Review of 'Gone with the Wind'

An audience of approximately 300 heard Mrs. Head, the author of Columbus, review the fascinating story of Scarlet O'Hara in Margaret Mitchell's best seller, "Gone with the Wind" last night in the Central Christian church. The occasion marked the opening of the 1936-37 season for the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs and also launched the first of a series of book reviews to be given by Mrs. Head for the fourth consecutive year under the auspices of the federation.

There is something in the novel for every type of reader, love stories, fine characterizations and an abundance of drama, and in addition the background is historically correct as is said. The fact that the novel has so dramatically drawn the effects of war upon the women who went and served gives "Gone with the Wind" a new insight of the women who resigned in the plants on horses and sold in summing up her present of the story.

Gentleness Only Virtue

Mrs. Head described Scarlet as a girl who early learned to conceal her vain, vicious and fiery nature beneath a veneer of gentleness a person practical in all things except her love for Ashley and seeing nothing of the beauty in the boy Charles Hamilton.

The novel has two heroines she stated the second being Melanie who was always upright and always wanted everyone else to be happy. Each exemplifies a different philosophy of life and each is admirably characterized, she said.

The reader may forget much of the book but none will ever forget Scarlet's trip from Atlanta to Tara down the long road that was to lead her only to a ruined world.

Mr. Head mentioned Russia in her period of reconstruction in comparison with the reconstruction of the south in the late 60's and 70's and said the author had lost none of the horror of the picture in her story.

That the novel is perhaps too long there is needless repetition and there are places where there could be condensation were the only criticisms of the novel offered.

The Wrong Murderer

By HIGH CLEVELY

Slowly, remorselessly he shuffled after Mahony taking all the punishment that Mahony dealt out to him waiting his chance to come to close quarters and get a grip on Mahony in those rage hand.

His chance came as Mahony stepping back quickly as a range caught his heel in the edge of a rug. For a moment Mahony staggered off his balance and in that moment the Irishman leaped.

Mahony twisted desperately trying to get out of range he almost succeeded but not quite. The Irishman left hard go a good grip on Mahony's coat with a sudden jerk he drew Mahony near him and his right hand like a snake striking closed around Mahony's throat.

Now the fone gentleman we can continue the argument more comfortably said the Irishman in a triumphant tone.

For a moment in that tremendous grip Mahony felt utterly helpless. He struggled hitting out with both fists at his opponent's body but it was like beating a brick wall. The Irishman was smiling. His eyes were blazing with a light of victorious exultation. Mahony's struggle grew weaker.

And then the rug which had been his undoing proved his salvation. As the two men struggled the loose rug which had become thoroughly rucked up became entangled between their feet. Still holding Mahony the big Irishman tripped the two men together, staggered into a small chair knocked it over and came crashing to the ground.

As he fell the Irishman had instinctively released his grip and flung out one arm to try to retain his balance. Mahony gave a desperate wriggle and got clear.

The two men rose to their feet almost simultaneously. Mahony's back was against a corner of the wall his breath was coming painfully in cobbler gasps and the Irishman barred his exit from the corner. In another moment that terrible grip would close on Mahony's throat again.

Mahony had neither the energy nor the breath remaining to dodge. There was only one thing to do and he did it. As the Irishman sprang again to the attack he marshalled all his strength in one supreme effort and sprang to meet him.

And this time either from sheer carelessness or because he thought that his opponent was exhausted the Irishman left a vital spot unguarded. Mahony's fist with all the skill and timing learned during many hours of boxing and with every bit of bone and muscle in his body and all the strength of desperation behind the blow crashed fairly on to the angle of the big man's jaw.

The Irishman coming forward at full speed was knocked clean over in his tracks landing on the flat of his back with a crash that seemed to shake the building. Mahony panting and exhausted leaned back against the wall. His right hand felt as though every bone in it was broken. The Irishman lay still.

From outside in the street came a sound of voices and a car drawing up. The big Irishman stirred slowly and feebly he raised himself into a sitting position. Mahony stepped forward from the wall. In case of any more trouble he meant to use the butt of his pistol.

The big man sitting on the floor stared up at him in a bewildered manner his eyes wide with wonder. A hideous smile twisted his battered lips.

That was a faine punch. Mister he said in a tone of awed admiration I don't know that anybody ever hit me as hard as that before.

I'll hit you a damned sight harder with the butt of this pistol if you try to get up said Mahony bluntly.

The Irishman raised a protesting hand.

Be also he said You can keep the money I know.

He was interrupted by a knock on the front door below. Mahony turned swiftly to the window and looked out. A car was drawn up in front of the house and by it was standing a uniformed police man another was standing a few yards away down the street. Both of them were looking at the house.

Hell The Police exclaimed Mahony.

What's that? exclaimed the Irishman.

With an effort he staggered to his feet and looked round him. The smile had left his lips his expression was that of a hunted man.

It will be me they're after he went on. Some dirty traitor must have seen me come here and given them the wire. Get me out of this mister—you will get me out of it, won't you? Sure a man like you a fighting man wouldn't set a poor devil of a fellow sent to jail with out stirring a finger.

I don't know the blasted way out myself! I don't want to be caught here any more than you do replied Mahony "From what I can te the place is surrounded. It will be no good going downstairs. I'm going to try my luck upwards. You can come if you like."

"I'm with you" said the Irishman.

He reached out his hand lifted the whisky from the table and took a mighty swig.

Ah he said taking a deep breath. Now I feel like a man again.

From town below came a sound of loud thudding on the front door.

The police were no longer content with knocking they were breaking i.

At the top of the stairs was a small landing. And in the middle of it a narrow wooden ladder leading up to a trapdoor in the flat roof of the house. Mahony ran up the ladder. To his dismay the trapdoor was securely locked with a padlock.

From down below came a loud crash as the front door burst open. Mahony seized the padlock and gave it a wrench. But it was a good strong lock and securely fixed. It did not move.

and cultural programs. It must be remembered that as you can lead a horse to water but can not make him drink so you can broadcast education and culture" but can not make the public take it.

Let educators and friends of culture produce broadcasts that the people will want to hear and they will have no difficulty in getting time on the radio stations.

But what's going on in Kansas City and vicinity shows clearly the general direction of the administration. There have been of course conflicting viewpoints even.

One is that Mr. Roosevelt is being pushed by the extremists in his own camp and that he selected upon the so-called grid idea of pooling transmission lines as an excellent way to extricate himself from the difficulty. The other view is that he intends to keep the matters from reaching the boil at a point during the campaign and that he intends to continue building dams and transmissio lines and passing the buck to the cities on the theory that they are assuming the initiative in the drive for cheap power.

The owners of the securities in existing companies are up against a leg of uncertainty which today is preventing them from refinancing and thus getting lower rates of interest that can represent real savings to the consumer. Will the Roosevelt regime give them a definite assurance as to what future policy is to be so the uncertainty may end?

If Mr. Roosevelt will indicate that he wants to go ahead and build a power system and encourage competition with private companies the latter companies are seriously planning to offer to sell all their properties to the government and get out from under advertising as much as possible for their investors.

Foolish Compromise

If Mr. Roosevelt is ready to protect private property against inflation and will keep the TVA a flood control or navigation experiment and will not add his influence to high pressure local communities into buying power or building distribution systems with federal loans, he can save to users of electricity in both urban and rural areas may end.

Politically the TVA construction has been of doubtful value for strongly enough Knoxville and vicinity went heavily Republican in the last county election a clean sweep having been achieved by the Republicans for the first time in many years.

Merchants and business men of course who have benefited by the stimulus given trade here by the TVA are grateful to the administration but it is significant to note that the Republicans are more confident than they have been in years of rolling up a good showing in eastern Tennessee which is the Republican section of the state.

A Queer World

How queer is our world! Facists led by Sir Oswald Mosley of the English Blackshirts who think they ought to change the British government learned from mob that fascism does not suit England yet. The Blackshirts were driven home.

Next day bands of the Facists invaded the London Jewish quarter smashing windows. In the first days rioting between Facists and the crowd that does not want Fascism hundreds were hurt.

England is becoming modernized. One of her race track gambling gangsters murdered American fashion in the course of gangster business was honored with a funeral that would make Chicago or New York stare.

Mussolini does not believe that old supply and demand is necessarily omnipotent. While cutting 4 per cent from the value of Italian money he forbids any increase in prices any rent increase for two years. That experiment will be watched with interest. The word money most important in the world to many has less real meaning than any other word in the dictionary nobody knowing anything about it.

FOLL KIDNAPER ASKS COURT TO END LIFE TERM

Colon Is Insane, That His Rights Were Begged and He Was Mistreated

The Nashville Tennessean pleaded guilty in May to kidnapping Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, Louisville's oil executives wife, for which $50,000 ransom was paid in October 1934. Federal Judge Elwood Hammon gave him life.

He was confined in Alcatraz and later transferred to Leavenworth. His wife and father were acquitted of the kidnapping last fall.

Clem W. Higgins who defended Mrs. Robinson and Robert L. Hogan today tendered an unsworn motion and ground for a new trial. Paragraph 15 alleged certain compacts and improper conduct which Robinson through counsel claimed tended to show he was not guilty.

Judge Hamilton said the charges were scandalous matter and he would not permit the motion to be filed unless someone took the responsibility of swearing to it.

Robinson's counsel then removed the paragraph.

The remainder of the motion contended Robinson had been incarcerated in Alcatraz June 1-5 when a Tennessee court order adjourning him instead was entered.
